Dear Editor of Modern Ghana, Kindly find attached my rejoinder to Hon.

Ablakwa's second denial of innocence for publication by you for the following reasons. I read an article published on your website yesterday which was first published by one Ohenenana Obonti Krow on ghanapolitics.com.gh on Wednesday, 13th September 2017 with the title "Andrews Krow (Ohenenana Obonti Krow), is not Samuel Okudzeto Ablakwa" as if it was first written yesterday and published the same day 14th September 2017 on your website. Ablakwa referred to this fake and criminal claim in his denial written and published later the same day on Wednesday 13th September 2017 to which I replied on the same day and published on my website the next day. Not disclosing the real date of authorship and the time of first publication of articles on cyber space has often been used to criminally deceive the unsuspecting public of the real date the article was first written and published on the internet as in this case - 13th September 2017 in Ohenenana's case and its republication on your website yesterday without disclosing the previous date of first publication.

The words "time dependent pseudonym" in cyber language and criminal investigations have a fixed and known meaning and a mere claim of authorship of the article by Ohenenana without more does not criminally exonerate Ablakwa from responsibility for using the time dependent pseudonym in real time in cyber security theory and law. It does not mean that no person called Andrews Krow in real life exists. It simply means that in real time Ablakwa depended on that name as his pseudonym. The use of the time dependent pseudonym Andrew Krow by Ablakwa cannot, therefore, be speculated to be an inconsistency and an error even by Modern Ghana who published the article with the time dependent pseudonym article carrying Ablakwa's real name and rank name at the tail end of the article. The claims and denials are clearly a criminal enterprise in cyber space. Once you have published the alleged claim of authorship by someone else claiming to be Andrews Krow without real time proof, you are obliged to publish my attached rejoinder to Ablakwa which appeared on my website yesterday in response and dated 13th September 2017 to his second denial which was published after the first publication by Ohenenana of his article on ghanapolitics.com.gh on 13th September 2017. I do not intend to waste my time responding to Ohenenana's criminal rubbish without any real time proof from him as stated in my rejoinder of yesterday under reference but I have a constitutional right to the publication of my article on my website which contains my perspective on Ohenenana Obonti Krow as a mere surrogate of Ablakwa in the grand criminal scheme of mischievous denials. I act upon legal evidence and actionable intelligence not speculation, so kind publish my rejoinder to Ablakwa.

Regards. Martin
